

Sinapse Print Simulators at PRINT09 Chicago

August 9th, 2009 – Sinapse Print Simulators (www.sinapseprint.com), the world's leading supplier of training simulators for flexo, gravure and offset presses, announces a range of new technology features for its market leading skills focused simulator products at PRINT 09, Chicago, September 11–16, 2009.

Major new Sinapse Print Simulators technology 'firsts' for Print09 will include:

- NEW : SHOTS "WorldSkills" version : released as v 4.7 (world skills competition challenges included in this release version)
- NEW: Functions for ink key presets
- NEW: Incorporation of a new speech function. As an option the simulator can show one language on screen and speak another, to teach trainees the foreign language equivalents
- NEW: Japanese and Arabic language versions launched
- NEW: Goss M600 Omnicon interface
- NEW: ASA (Automatic Session Analysis) which lets trainers automatically analyse trainee results and compare them – point for point – with recommended solutions

Sinapse Print Simulators enquiries can be made at the Printing Industries of America booth, 8227 at McCormick Place.

The full range of Sinapse Print Simulators products and capabilities for the American market can be seen and discussed there or by contacting James A. Workman of Printing Industries of America at JWorkman@printing.org or telephone 412-259-1710.
